ABSTRACT

[51] Methods and systems for high quality computer based adaptation of audio data are shown. Adaptation, delivery of audio data, and testing of user's hearing abilities can occur on computers or computer networks such as the Internet. Adaptation can compensate for frequency dependent and audio masking impairments. The audio to be adapted can include real-time streaming digital data or static data files. Standard digital audio formats are supported.